

One day, there was a man who never knew how his life would turn out. One day he found himself trapped inside a cave with deadly vipers capable of killing in one bite. He searched frantically to find something to defend himself with, and by doing that he discovered a trident. Once the vipers started to attack, he killed them one by one. But he then discovered that once one dies, two more come back to take its place, so he started to lose.

When the first snake bit him he started to instantly feel weak. Sensing his weakness, more snakes started to bite him. After he was bitten over a hundred times, he passed out – but he was not dead. He woke up a week later wondering how he was still alive. He was so angry that he punched the cave wall hard enough to take a whole chunk out of it, which left him curious about his own strength. He just wanted to get out of the cave, so he tried jumping on a ledge for elevation. Surprisingly, he noticed that he was able to fly to the roof before falling back down.

He started to question whether or not the venom from the snake bites gave him super human powers. Yes, it did! So, knowing this, he was able to escape the cave and get out. He found help and explained everything to the doctors who ran tests on him. They told him that he now had the ability to fly with super human strength. As time passed, he started to go blind and grow an antenna, which he could use to sense everything around him. He was scared because he thought that he would have to just live a miserable life.

One day he woke up and heard about a bank robbery occurring, so he grabbed his trident and flew to the location. Once he arrived, he noticed the doors were locked, so it left him with no choice but to break the wall with his trident. He busted his way in and saw civilians scared and hiding, so he got them out safely and held the suspects until authorities could take control. Everyone wondered who he was, and how did he do what he did. He saved the people and the bank. Majic Man was now a hero and that's what people called him. He was able to overcome all adversity and stop a major crime. He knew that his new powers could help people and that he would be using them for the rest of his life to fight crime.