RELIEF, THE SUPERHERO

CHARACTERISTICS

My superhero is big, strong, soft spoken, cares about others, wants to see others happy, and wants to see everyone succeed. He spent his childhood bullied for being girly and sensitive, everyone calling him names. As an adult he's tall, strong, and has a cape.

POWERS

My superhero has healing powers and takes away the pain of others. His job is to make sure that suffering and loss doesn't reach the people. However, the pain and suffering is felt by him. He talks it out with his therapist because it's even too much for him.

DISCOVERY OF POWERS

One day when he was little he comes home from school and his mother immediately knew something was off. After asking him about his day, he confessed that he felt something new. He told her that the bullies at school became his friends. When his mom asked how that happened, he said that he could see they were suffering. Once he saw the suffering, he felt the suffering. At that moment, he saw his bullies happy for the first time. They were so glad and full of joy that everyone at school started getting along. Although this made him happy to see, he became filled with sadness and pain. He was very confused and felt lost.

ORIGIN STORY

When Relief was walking home a pack of bullies picked on him and beat him up. Relief says climb down stop please. They stop and say sorry, help him up. He runs home tells mom what happened.

SHORT STORY OF CONFLICT

Relief is walking home from school. He walks by a hospital, sees a man laying outside saying 'God, help me. Help my son!'

Relief comes right over – 'What's going on sir?'

'It's my son... my son. He's not doing good right now'

Relief touches his shoulder says 'Everything is going to be fine'.

The man says thank you, and Relief tells him to go and see his son, and that everything was going to be okay as long as he keeps praying. "You will have good days and bad days, just know he's watching. I'm just someone that helps people".
